

Living Room/Dining Room Transformation without Spending

The night before I went to see Carol, she had a dream of a big blue butterfly coming to her and needing her help to get back to the butterfly sanctuary. She went to her dream dictionary and saw that butterflies represented transformation. This is exactly what happened in her home when we worked together.

When you walk into a house and the first room you see is a dining room, it can mean that you are a nurturer. You like to feed people. However, people you feed may take and take and then leave you behind feeling like you've been taken from. Carol loves being a mom, but she also feels a little depleted.

She squeezed a few chairs and TV into her wealth corner instead of using as its intended purpose of a dining room. If you can feed your family you are wealthy!! It's best to avoid cramping your style in your wealth corner.

Never opening your drapes may keep potential opportunities at bay. Fresh sunlight not only feels good in the home, it boots your mood and opens life up to opportunities!

When the first room of sight is the living room people feel welcome and they want to stay and enjoy your company. It's also a great energy to come home to after a long day of work; you come home to a place where you may easily relax

Opening up and illuminating the knowledge corner (where the two white chairs now live) will help everyone in the home feel like they know who they are even more. They'll all have a little more breathing room to make conscious decisions on who they are and how they want to express themselves.

This physical transformation took us just over two hours to complete. Carol was ready for a transformation (dreaming about butterflies the night before!!) and it was such a joy to help facilitate and inspire this opening for her and her family.

"I can't thank you enough for the help you gave me in pulling my house together. You dove right in and helped me pull off the look I had been craving for so long. I got everything I hoped I'd get from my experience with you. I got the house I always wanted but couldn't ever seem to get, I learned that I know what I like and I think it looks pretty good all together. I learned so much about Feng Shui from you that I'm still adding little touches of my own since you left. The Feng Shui cures you gave me were felt immediately in my family life and career. They just took off! Good happened and still is. I even got a little more organized. You are great fun to work with and made me feel so at ease, I feel like I met a good friend in the bargain. True to your name, you inspired me and gave me the confidence to trust my own instincts. And that is the most important thing of all." ~ Carol
